

STOCKPERSON, HERTFORDSHIRE (Job Ref 15)

An exciting career opportunity has arisen for an enthusiastic person to work on a Client's educational livestock unit within a busy farm which includes around 130 milking cows, 80 followers, 350 breeding Sheep and small-scale poultry enterprises. Growing 200 ha of grass and forage crops.

The role includes a diverse range of tasks, including tractor work, lambing, calf rearing, poultry work and some teaching / supervisory duties. Accommodation can be arranged.

Appropriate qualifications and livestock husbandry experiences are a requirement for this role. A dairying background would be an advantage although full training will be provided to the right candidate.

This role will suit a person who considers themselves to be an allrounder, is good with people and livestock alike and has an interest in developing their character and knowledge.

Ideally, a confident team player who is patient and flexible, with the capacity to take on responsibility. The successful candidate will demonstrate an ability to manage daily issues and support the team.

As well as a contributory pension scheme, free car parking, this post also attracts a personal development programme, career progression and 21 days holiday + Bank Holidays per year.

If you are interested in this position, please send your cv, in the strictest confidence, to Helen Kenvin at recruitment@sentry.co.uk. Please quote the job reference 15.